They Called It Notre Dame

"Sure, a little bit of heaven fell from out the sky one day,
And it nestled in Rose-Valley where the girls are always gay,
And when the angels saw it, sure it looked so peaceful there,
They wrapped their wings around it and gave it special care.
Then, they sprinkled it with Brownie stars to make its school so grand,

And the spirit that they gave it will surely rock the land.
Then, they dotted it with loyal hearts to lead it on to fame,
And when they had it finished, sure they called it NOTRE DAME."

Adapted by Christine Convery, of the Class of '46, "A Little Bit of Heaven" has often been used as a feature cheer of our League basketball games. This year, when Maryscript was being planned, the Staff decided to use this song as a theme. Through the pages of Maryscript they hope to express the joys and adventures of school days, especially those of Senior year, so that in memory may linger the reasons why the Angels who "found our little bit of heaven nestled in Rose Valley," worked and prayed with us "to make our school so grand . . . and when they had it finished, sure, they called it Notre Dame!"

Heaven on Earth is Based on the Rock

Most Reverend J. Carroll McCormick, Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia

Since his consecration as Bishop in the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul in 1947, His Excellency the Most Reverend J. Carroll McCormick has acted as Auxiliary Bishop of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia. His Excellency is well-known to both clergy and laity in Philadelphia for his devoted and active administration of diocesan affairs.

The Most Reverend Joseph M. McShea, D.D., was consecrated Bishop on the Feast of St. Joseph in 1952, and soon after his elevation, was named Auxiliary Bishop to His Excellency the Most Reverend John F. O'Hara, Archbishop of Philadelphia. At the time of his appointment, His Excellency had been acting as secretary in the Apostolic Delegation in Washington. Previously he had served as professor at the Seminary of St. Charles in Overbrook and as minutante in the Sacred Oriental College in Rome.

Most Reverend Joseph M. McShea,
Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia.

That is the Church

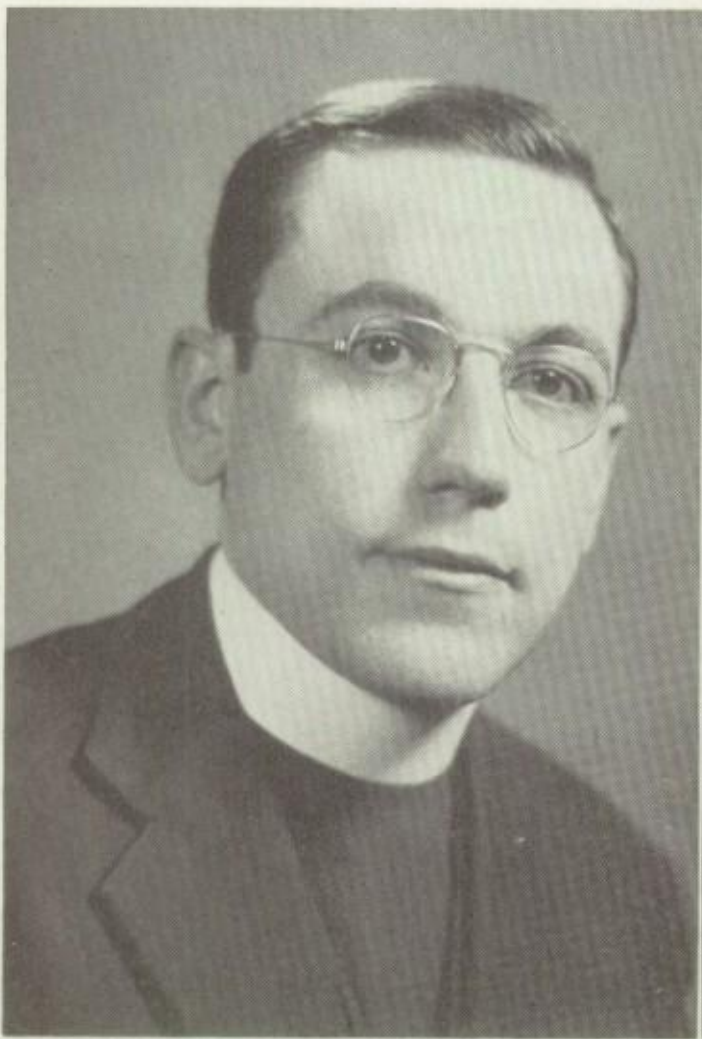

Most Reverend John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., D.D., Archbishop of Philadelphia

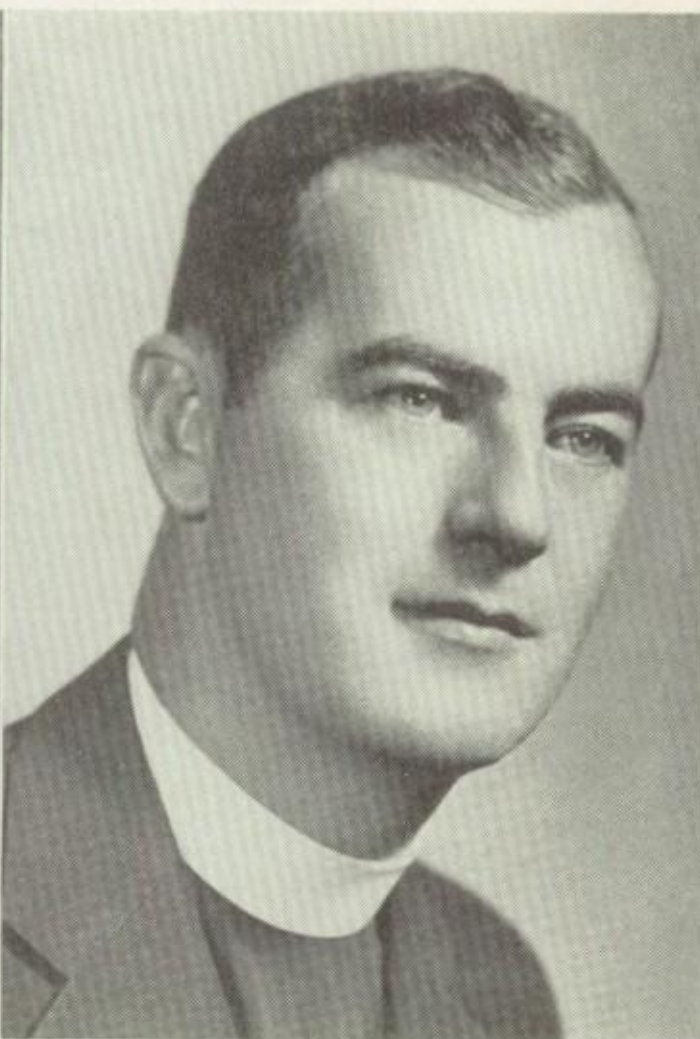

Although His Excellency, the Most Reverend John F. O'Hara, C.S.C., has been the spiritual head of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia for little more than a year, he has endeared himself to every member of his vast flock. As Archbishop of Philadelphia, his Christ-like care for the welfare of his people extends to every phase of Catholic life. His efforts for the Christian education of the young extend even to the pre-school child through the work of the Catholic Family Life Conference.

With the permission of His Excellency, membership in the Junior Adoration Society brings to Notre Dame Seniors and Juniors one of their most precious privileges, that of spending every Thursday precious moments before Our Lord exposed for adoration in the Blessed Sacrament.

Reverend John J. Graham, D.D., associate superintendent of schools.

Reverend John J. Haydt, J.C.D., associate superintendent of schools.

Assisting Monsignor Reilly in the work of planning and carrying out an educational program for the thousands of students in the Archdiocese of Philadelphia are Assistant Superintendents Father John J. Graham and Father John J. Haydt. We are grateful to them for their encouraging interest in our activities and projects.

In September, Reverend James T. McErlane was named Spiritual Director of the students of Notre Dame. His kind priestly counsel and his desire to help all in need have won for him the trust and esteem of all the girls who come under his guidance.

Reverend Father James T. McErlane, Spiritual Director of the Student body, shows his fatherly interest in all our activities by stopping in for a moment at our Senior Prom, held at the Broadwood Hotel.

Guides Along the Way

The Right Reverend Monsignor Edward M. Reilly, superintendent of Archdiocesan Catholic Schools.

The graduates of 1953 will remember with pride that it was in their senior year that Right Reverend Monsignor Edward M. Reilly, superintendent of schools, was named Domestic Prelate, and member of the Papal Household, by Our Holy Father, Pope Pius XII. Monsignor Reilly has shown unceasing devotion to Catholic Education and deep interest in every student. The girls of Notre Dame are happy to congratulate Monsignor Reilly on his new honor and to assure him of a daily remembrance in prayer for continued success in his work for Catholic Education.

Sister Josepha de St. Francois, Mother General of the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur, visits Moylan.

The class of '53 is grateful to the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur not only for teaching us the traditional subjects, but also for the many lessons that cannot be learned from books. From their example we learned that winning was good, but fair play was better. Through their instructions we have come closer to God and, in a special way to the Blessed Mother, our patroness. Every girl will treasure those moments in the silence of the Sisters' Chapel, where she found peace of mind and soul.

The Sisters' experience, understanding, and help were always at hand in any problem that arose. Because of our Sisters, we find ourselves at the close of our high school days, with a greater love for God and our neighbor than we had before. May we in turn, give to others what we have learned from them.

These Hearts Are Loyal, Too!

We have at Notre Dame, complementing our religious faculty of thirty-six Sisters, a lay faculty of seven. These teachers have long played an important role at our school. Their curriculum includes instruction in music, languages, physical education, health, home economics, and family living.

During our years at Notre Dame, we have learned to know and love our lay teachers for their patience and understanding, and for the generosity with which they devoted so many extra hours solely for our benefit.

To them we would here extend our sincere gratitude for all the things which we know that they have done for us, and even more for the numberless other hidden acts of kindness about which we shall probably never know.

Mrs. Mary Broadbent takes Gertrude Bulterman's temperature while Elizabeth Desko wonders (hopefully) if she'll be sent home to recover.

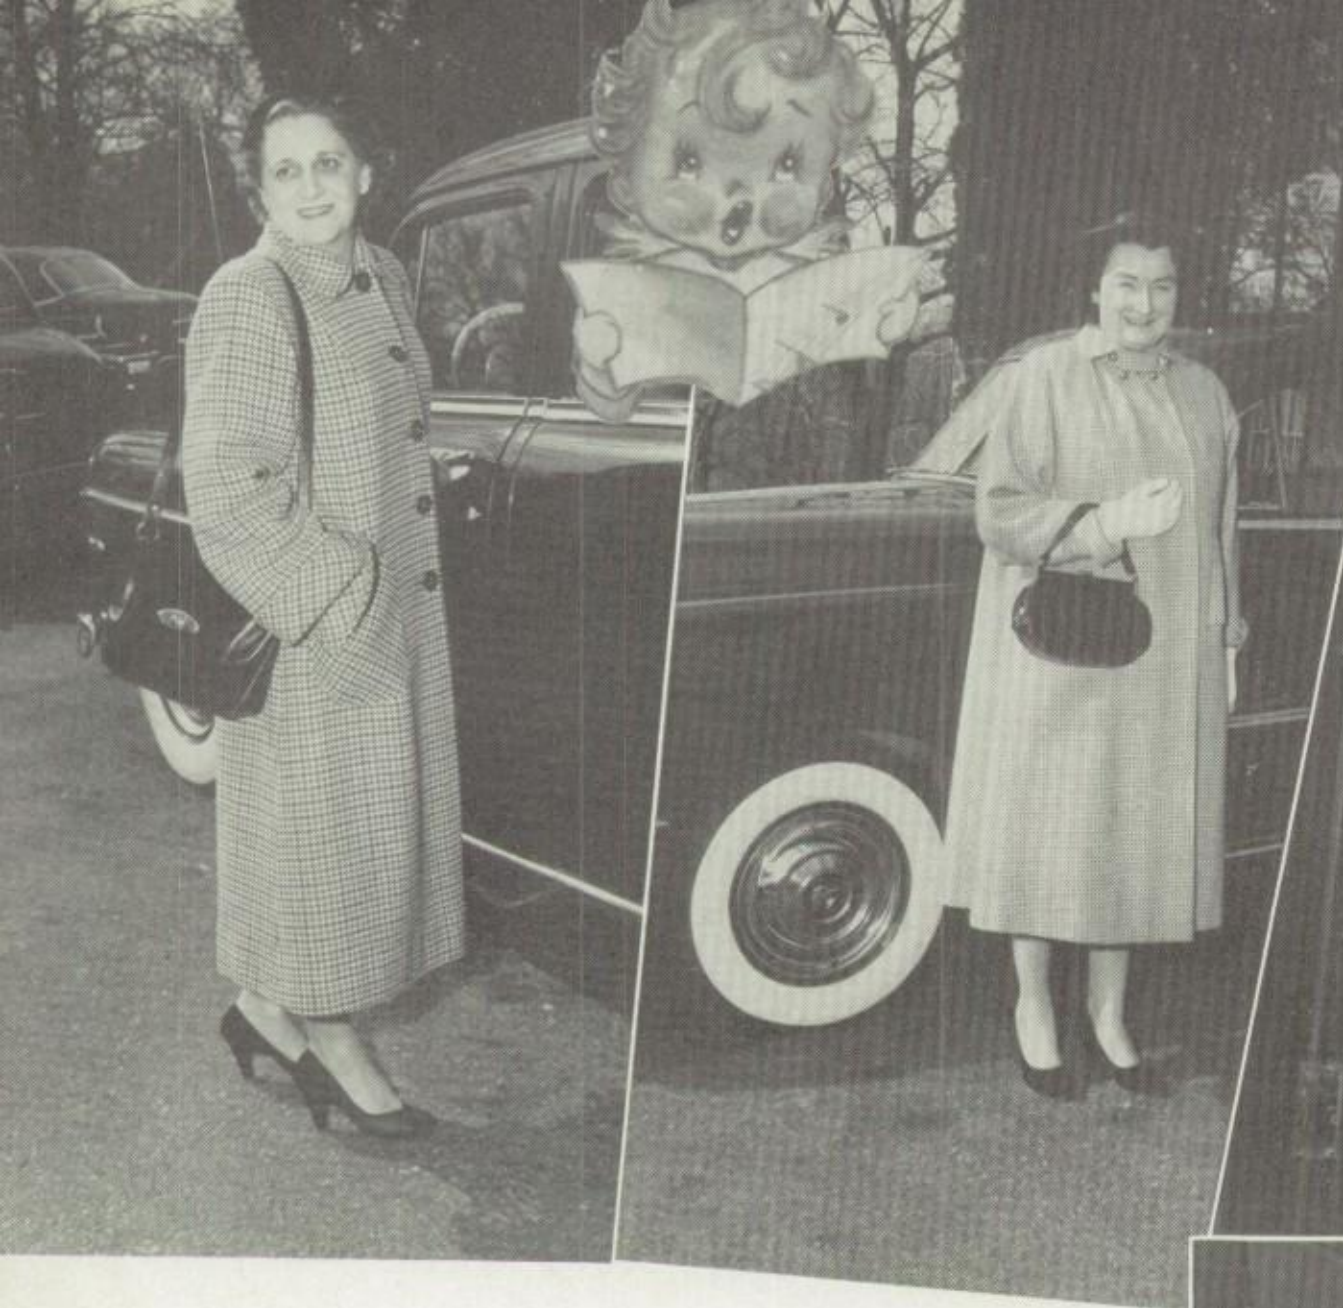

Miss Catherine Kelly, in addition to teaching the violin at N. D., is a member of the Trenton Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Joan Molko, a graduate of Notre Dame of the class of 1951, is now the charming and capable School Secretary.

Miss Vivian Carson, an alumna of Prospect Park High and Temple University, came to us in September as our gym teacher and basketball coach.

Is there a bit of relief in Miss Rosalie Belfi's ever-ready smile as she heads for home after teaching French all day?

Even on Monday morning Miss Sara McCartan can smile before undertaking English and Spanish classes.

Mary Ann Buler, Patricia Bubness, and Lois Buckley greet the Home Ec and Family Living teacher, Miss Gertrude Hoffner, as they enter school.

Religion Leads All Academic Subjects

As the Certain Road to Heaven

If Lived As Well As Learned!

Our Catholic training is the foundation for our Catholic life. Through it we have been taught how to live as Catholics, all day, every day.

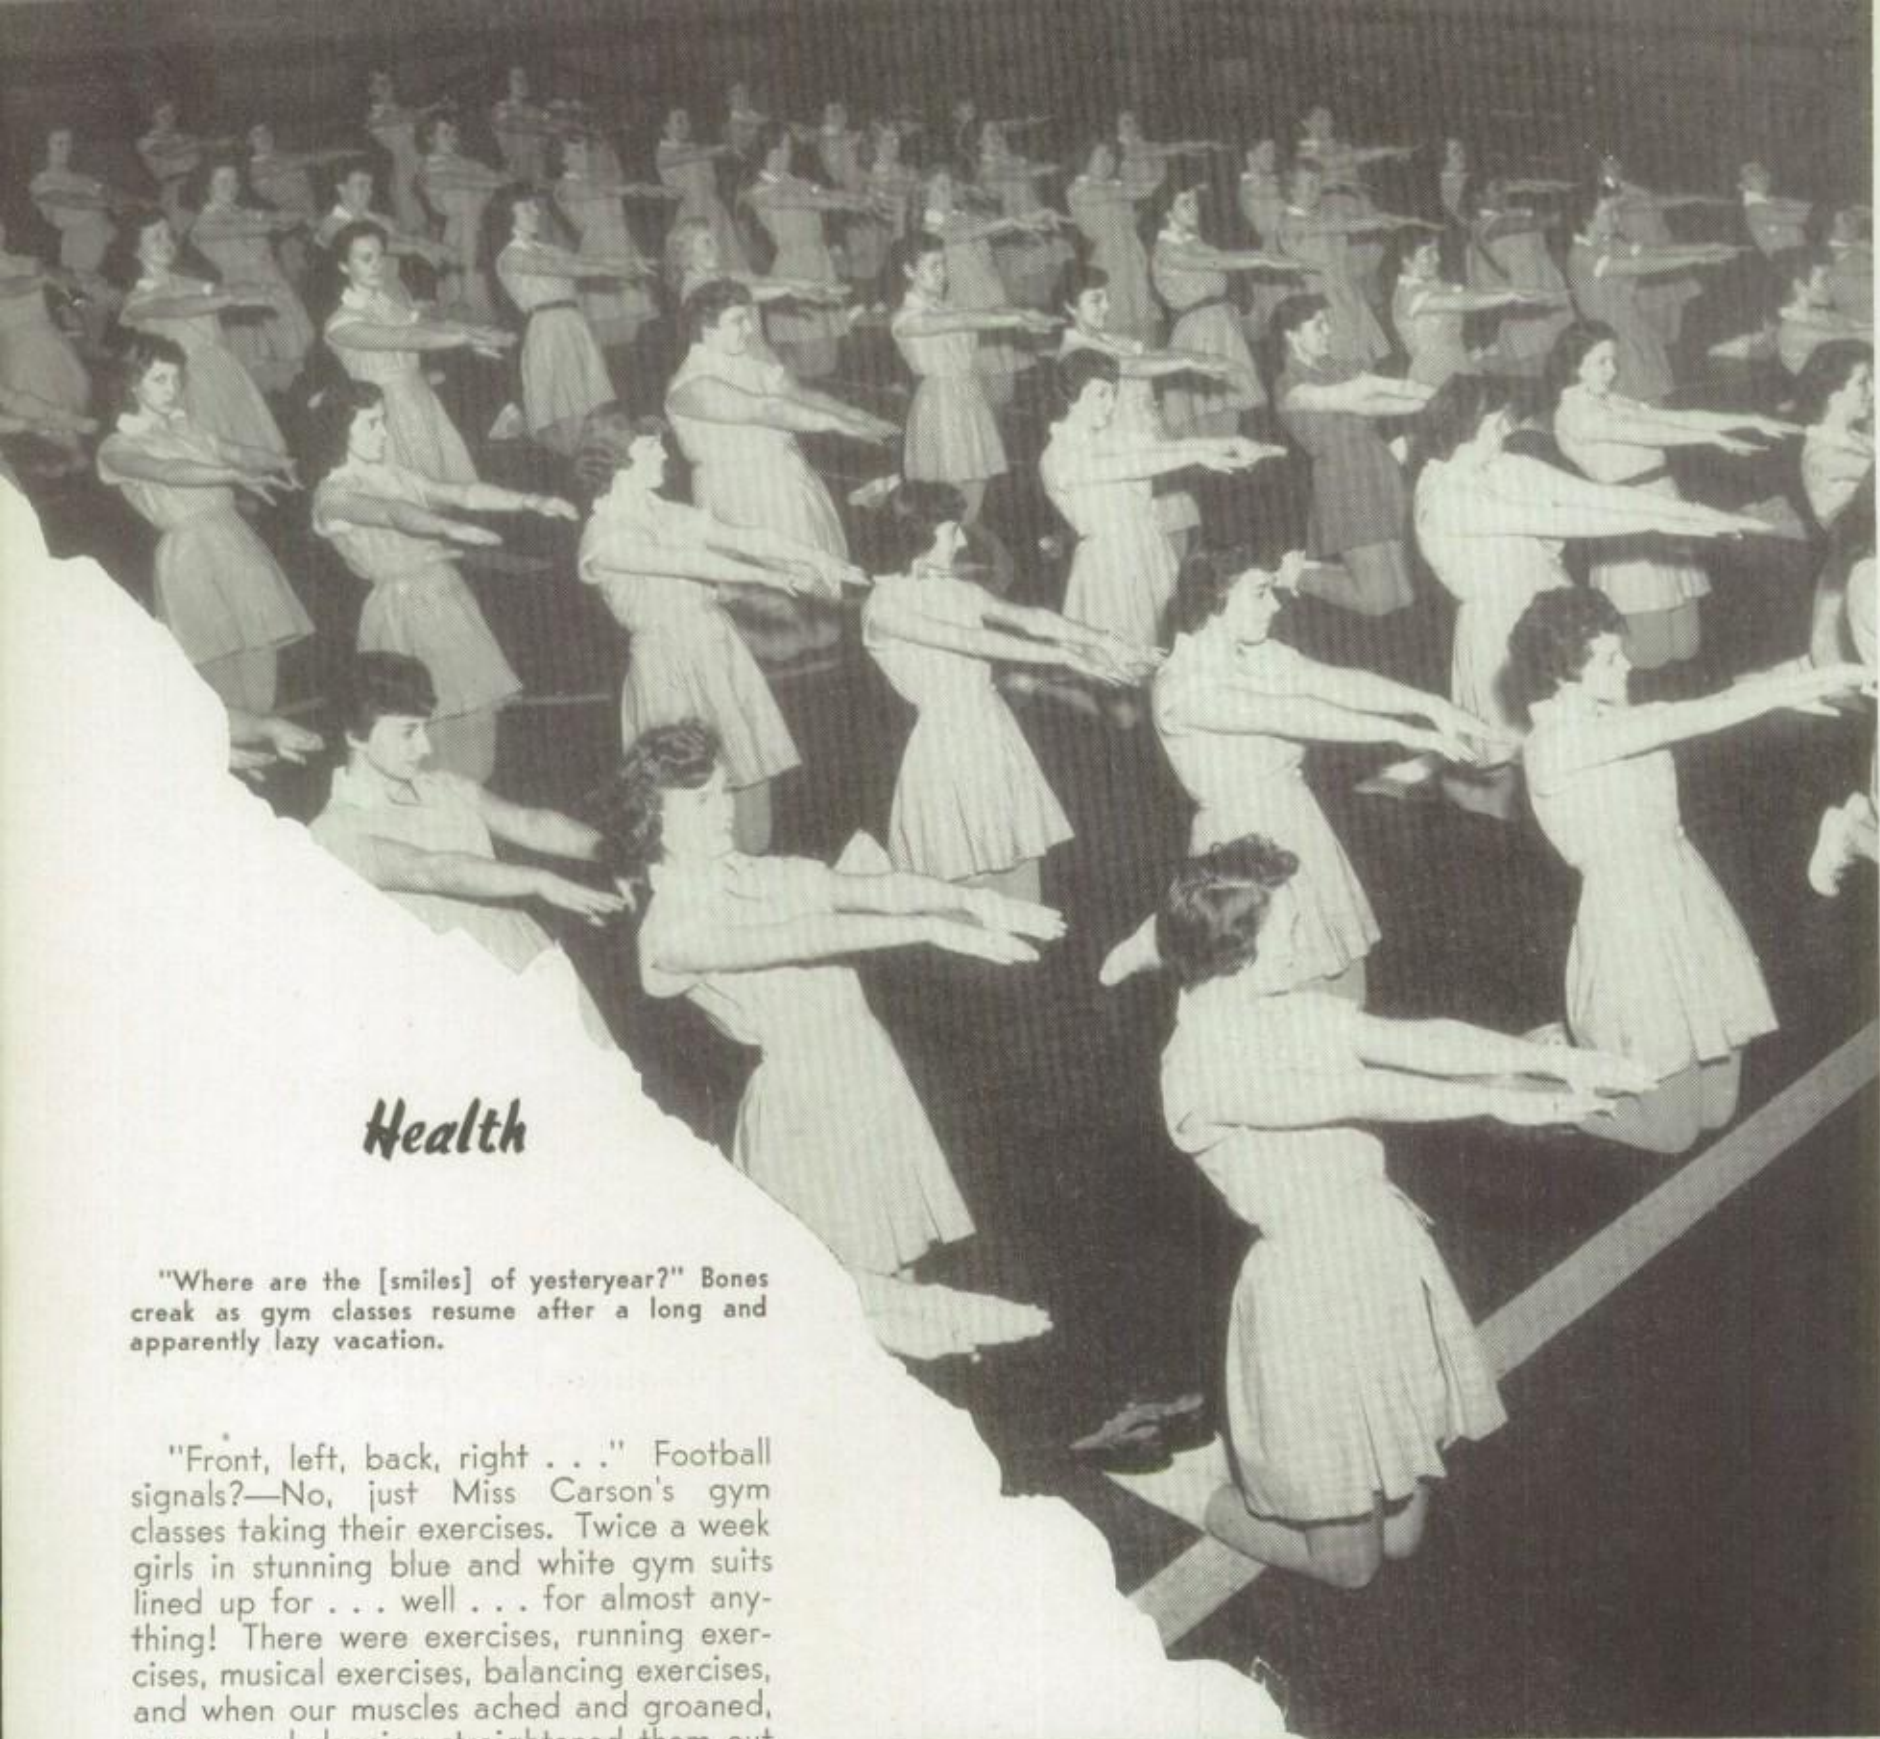

Our high school religion course was divided into four units of study for the four years. Freshman, through their study of the life of Christ, gained a deeper knowledge and love of Christ Himself, and of His divine character. The sophomores devoted their religion lessons to a study of the founding of Christ's Church, and of its history down through the ages to our present day. The Juniors delved into the laws which govern Christ's followers—the Commandments and the Precepts. The Senior Apologetics classes studied the problems which confront the members of the Church Militant today. Their course strengthened their knowledge of their faith based on reason and logical proofs, so that, after graduation they will be able to explain and defend their faith in our modern world.

RIGHT: Mary Dehlinger points out to her Freshmen Religion class a scene from the Life of Christ illustrating the quality of Christ's character they are discussing.

Health

"Where are the [smiles] of yesteryear?" Bones creak as gym classes resume after a long and apparently lazy vacation.

"Front, left, back, right . . ." Football signals?—No, just Miss Carson's gym classes taking their exercises. Twice a week girls in stunning blue and white gym suits lined up for . . . well . . . for almost anything! There were exercises, running exercises, musical exercises, balancing exercises, and when our muscles ached and groaned, games and dancing straightened them out again. Let's not forget the sound effects that accompanied the classes: the chattering of teeth (as the windows were opened), the cracking of bones (as our belles took that first knee bend), the audible puffing and panting as we worked to "get in trim."

In Spring and Fall, our gym classes resorted to the sports field, where we enjoyed the sunshine as we dashed about in relay races or played volleyball, hockey, and softball.

Gym was a fast-moving, lively period and we (ouch!) benefited from it physically and mentally.

In case of a fire or flood, consult Miss Hoffner's Home Nursing classes—always first with the latest in First Aid treatments.

Sleep-walkers with their eyes open?—No, just a regular gym class going through their paces.

And Home: "Bit of Heaven"

Did you know that gamma-globulin is a vaccine for polio? That ring worm is not a worm? That there are seven danger signs for Cancer? These are a few of the facts we learned every Friday!

Truthfully though, our Mrs. Broadbent gave us in her weekly health broadcasts practical and sound instruction which will be of great value to us all our lives. Therefore we really didn't mind translating our own shorthand into Mrs. Broadbent's notes!

Besides the general health lessons, some students elected Home Nursing and Family Living courses. The Home Nursing course taught the students the principles of First Aid and the care of the sick in the home.

In the Family Living classes the students realized that the center of all happiness was the home. The purpose of each class was to develop love of the home and to learn of its lasting influence upon character and life. The second feature of the course was personality development. The girls learned charm through imitation of Mary, and a deeper spiritual attitude toward life, necessary for the great responsibilities of a future homemaker.

Family Living presents an amusing problem to Anna Mae Keenan and her classmates.

ABOVE: Dolores Orlowsky, right, convinces Patricia Moore that you do get lye when an electric current passes through a solution of sodium chloride.

For another year the school has safely survived the experiments of our young scientists in the biology, chemistry and physics classes, who went about happily mixing unknown elements to get unexpected results. The mathematicians of the school, too, are still surviving, although they have found that perfectly simple letters, such as x, y, and z, can cause a great deal of trouble.

But nothing phases our academic students; (Ask any of them and they'll tell you so) they undertake with unfaltering equanimity to solve the problems of the ancient world or of the new Administration.

Brown clad girls seen walking through the halls muttering unintelligible syllables caused onlookers some worry, until it was discovered that they were merely our French, Latin, and Spanish students studying vocabulary, for those inevitable quizzes, or, when monthlies came around, those complicated grammar rules. (—with exceptions, of course, n'est-ce pas?)

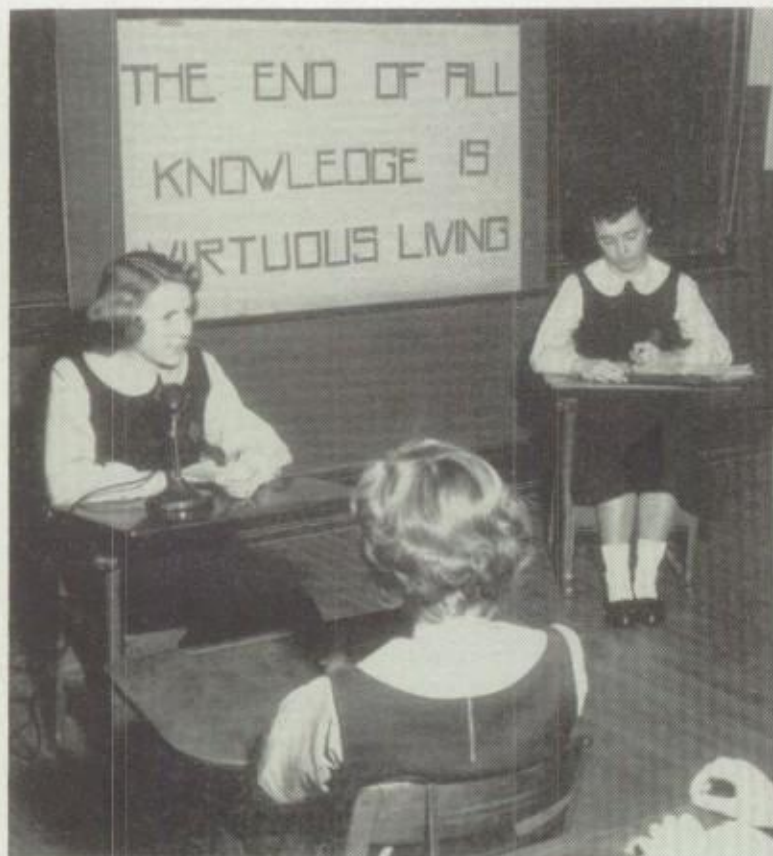

However, all's well that ends well, and with June at hand, we are still surviving!

BELOW: Life in a drop of water is shown to a group of wide-eyed sophomores by means of the microfilm projector.

Academic Stars Shine

Anxious Juniors review history highlights before midyears. Betty Crewalk explains to her classmates how America began.

"Catholic books influence Catholic lives" declares Chairman Kathleen O'Connell, during a panel discussion in English I. Panel members Ethel May Davis and Ann Marie Borneman prepare to continue the discussion.

The intricacies of the trapezoid are expertly explained by Bernice Donahue, as Eleanor Kern tries diligently to solve a problem.

Seniors of the Office Practice class demonstrate their ability to master the essentials of filing

The art of balancing the books provides a worthy challenge to Margaret Hoffman and other members of the Bookkeeping classes.

"St-op! Ten minutes!" and silence once again reigns supreme in the Arcade as the Senior typists pull to a mighty stop to figure their speed for the day.

Next door in 104, ND's stenographers seek to build up their speed via records. (Will we ever forget—"We'll now have the same dictation at 110 words a minute —for control!")

While Transcription classes are transcribing shorthand, Bookkeeping students learn to "balance the books" and Office Practice pupils conscientiously struggle to master the various machines.

Many were the days we spent trying to grasp the seemingly endless but necessary

Preparing to "Lead Us On to Fame in Business"

Future secretaries display their business acumen while striving to attain new shorthand speeds.

punctuation rules which just never seemed to come to our minds at just the right time.

And those filing classes! How were we to always remember that you write Post, John and Company, instead of Post and Company, John?

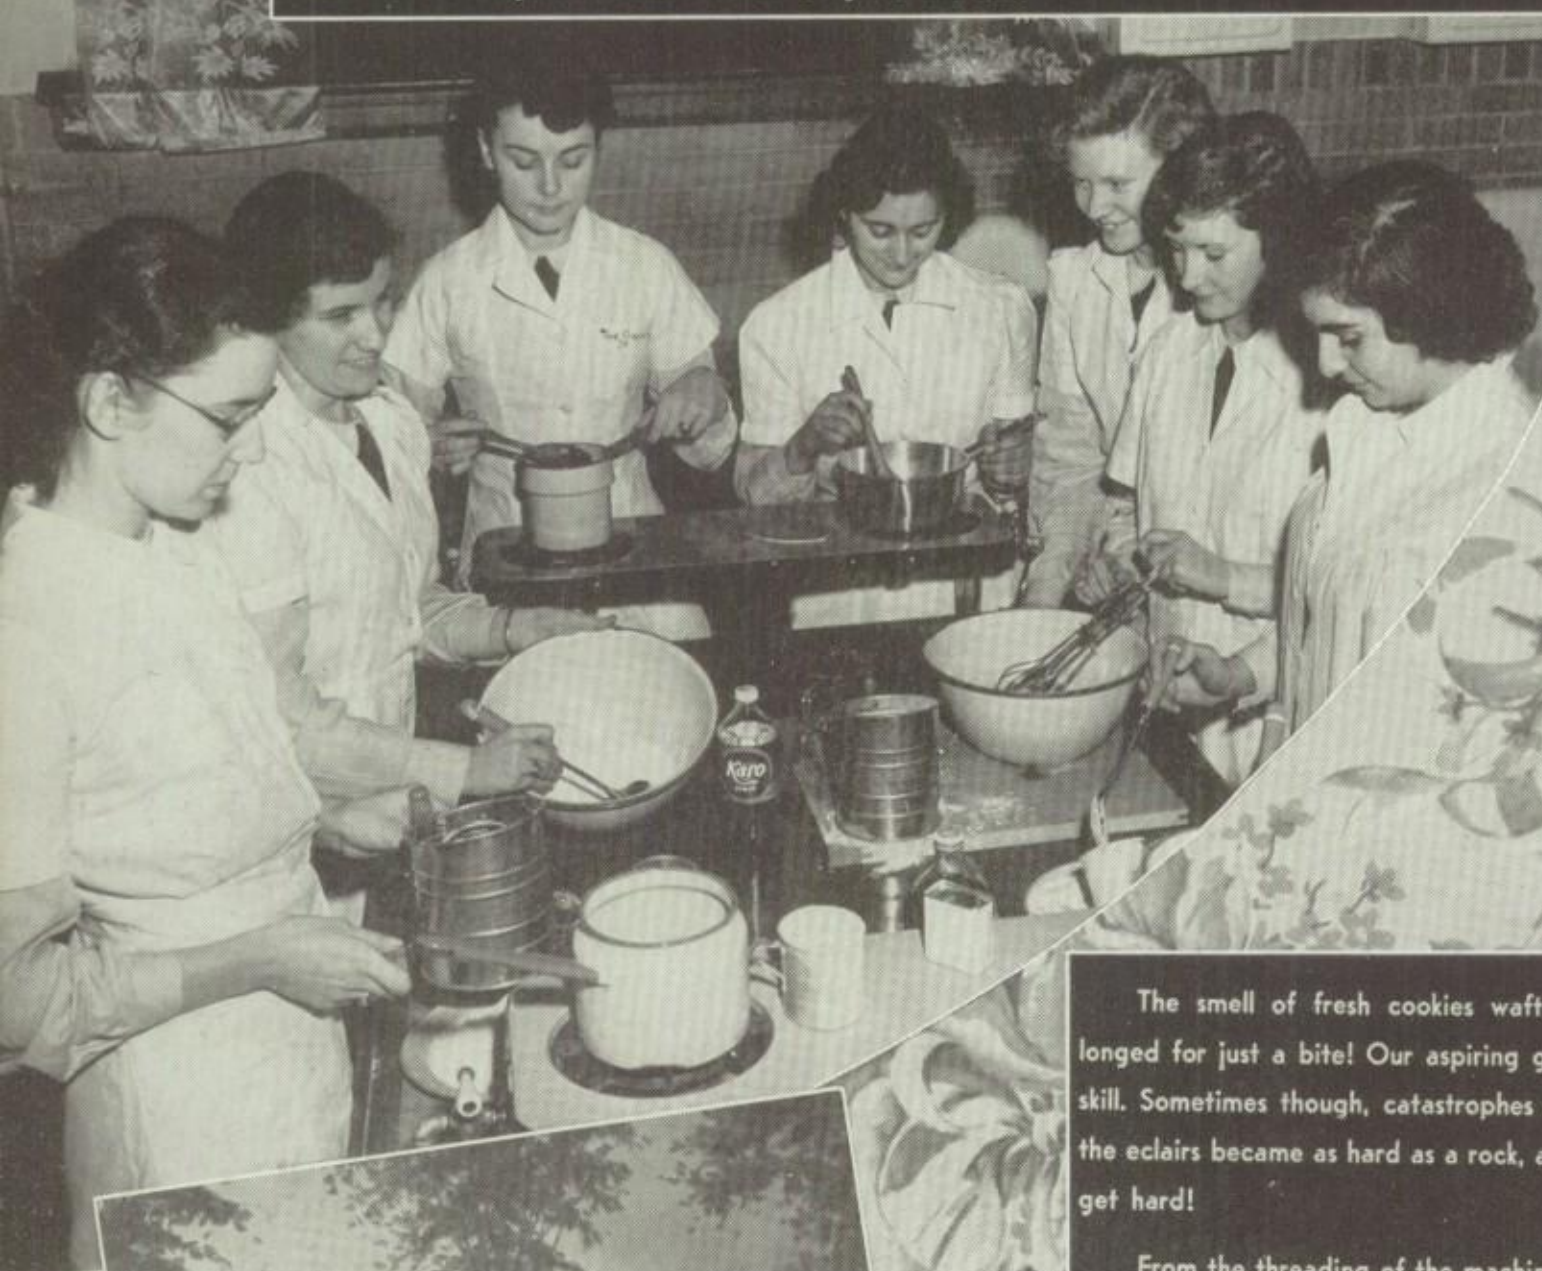

But "never say die" was our motto and on we went to private dictation under the vigilant eye of Sister who also put us through the paces of practicing private interviews causing just a mild case of mass hysteria.

But typing meant more than a lot of work, it also brought us a lot of fun. The many hours spent typing for THE TURRET and also, of course, for MARYSCRIPT brought many hours of pleasure.

Hands on keys, eyes on books, typing class await the signal to begin their time test.

Follow the directions, girls: two cups of flour, one cup of sugar, put them together and you have a delicious cake. Marie Flanigan, Helen Parrino, Geraldine Giberson join with Antoinette Spada, Nora O'Connell, Dolores Smith and Miriam Russo work together to make their work as light as their cake.

The smell of fresh cookies wafted through the school and everyone longed for just a bite! Our aspiring good cooks were proving their culinary skill. Sometimes though, catastrophes occurred, as when the hard sauce for the eclairs became as hard as a rock, and when that fudge icing just wouldn't get hard!

From the threading of the machine to the completion of an entire outfit and through it all, the laying-out, pinning, basting, matching, cutting, joining, stitching, and fitting, we learned quite a bit—and especially what kind of machines are used in Room 313! Right?

But the reward of it all came in the Spring, when each girl made her debut at N. D.'s annual Fashion Show and modeled her own creations.

Carolyn Donahue displays her own creation, a dressy little bolero dress in a summery flower print.

The perfect selections for an informal tea, basic cotton dresses with just a touch of frivolity for that "dress-up look" are modeled by Mary Timlin, Gloria Crispin, Helen Kelleher, and Mary Conway.

To Make Home More Heavenly

Is Their Aim in Foods and Clothing Classes

Mary Mueller, Joan Kling, Mary Ann Stroup, and Rosalie DeAugustine demonstrate the correct way of attending an informal luncheon. Alice Mary Totaro and Ann Hodgson learn the knack of serving efficiently.

Catherine McCabe and Nancy Benvegno pose for the photographer while waiting for the start of the Fashion Show.

Displaying their new dresses Catherine McGoldrick and Patricia Coughlin sit, as do Mary Ann Lambert and Catherine Keerns stand, while Nancy Mae Kelly and Dolores Broderick join the group examining the latest style in the latest magazines.

Marguerite Cassidy, Kathleen White, Joan Ottaviano, and Joan Murphy, model casual afternoon dresses.

Doris Glenn dips a little more green from the palette, and a Ming tree takes shape on her canvas. Marianna Clayton adds finishing touches to her Madonna. Jeanne McGlone, Mary Mays, and Marie Pinter learn more each day about the technique of landscape painting in oils.

Mechanical drawing really requires concentration! Margaret Brockmeyer and Joan Redmond gain practical experience in orthographic projection as they complete their drawing of an Angle Brace.

Did the cheerleaders' megaphones require a touch-up job? or were posters needed to accentuate the gaiety of Freshman Day, Junior Day, basketball games, or the Prom? The Art Department was always ready to contribute time and talent to school activities.

The decorations at Christmas time and the hundreds of newly dressed dolls and repaired toys appeared not by magic, but through the diligent efforts of our generous art students.

Of course they had to go to class too, where they studied all types of art techniques, from charcoal to water colors and oils. Sophomores labored at still life, design, and perspective; juniors tried their hand at life drawings, while seniors prepared themselves for careers as illustrators or draftsmen.

Ethel McCullough takes seriously Miss Kelly's advice, "Practice makes perfect."

"In this section . . ." Mary McKenna gives helpful hints to fellow drummers Mary Ann Dinella and Mary Ann Lambert.

Elbow grease replaces Brillo, as Mary Ann Highslip, Julia Sullivan, and Maureen Lavin make their instruments "squeaky clean."

Mary Turnbull tunes her bass in preparation for a coming assembly program, while Rosemary McPeak, Kathleen Hutchinson, Jane Desmond, Eileen Mullen, and Judy Reynolds arrange music.

Happy confusion reigns at tune-up time at N.D.

Music — Most Spiritual of Material Things

Mr. Guglielmo Sabatini, director of the Trenton Symphony, whom we are proud to claim also as director of N.D.'s Orchestra, tucks away another of his many arrangements of orchestral compositions, made especially for us.

Tetrachords . . . diminished intervals . . . related minors . . . Was some new and foreign language seeping into Notre Dame? Not at all, just the exclusive language of N. D.'s Music Department.

Freshmen, handling their new instruments with care, practiced diligently with dreams of the day when they, too, would occupy a chair in the orchestra. Sophomores were confronted with a more difficult problem, the theory of music, which complemented lessons on Tuesday in the individual instruments, and the daily practice periods.

Juniors took their seats happily, as the orchestra tuned up for rehearsal every Tuesday from 3:00 to 5:00 under the direction of Mr. Sabatini. To Seniors was opened a new world of experience in music, when they learned to listen to classical records while following the score.

The pied piper's assistant, Mary Mylett, tries to entice Sally Mullen, Mary Ulshafer, Marie Fluharty, and Regina Mooney to follow in her footsteps.

Concert-meister Elaine Stanbach shows new members of the Orchestra some tricks of the trade.

Morning, Noon,

"School days, school days, dear ole golden rule days!" . . . From far and wide in Delaware County we came to N. D. to learn the three R's. Fourteen bright-hued school buses made four trips daily covering 45 parishes to bring us to and from our Alma Mater. A few others of us came by train, trolley, public bus, or we merely walked.

From Locker rooms A, B, C, and D, first shift students went to their 8:20 period. At 9:05 began our Activity Period. Activity? The word is an understatement! Homeroom programs, patron drives for Senior Play or Maryscript, Club meetings, rallies for basketball games, last-minute cramming for classes or exams,

Up with the birds to make that 8:20 Class! N.D.'s Golden chariots (or green or red) start rolling at 7:30 a.m. Ann O'Connell made it, and even remembered her lunch and books, too!

Only a five-minute break between classes, but the number of news flashes that travel the grapevine in that five minutes would fill The Bulletin! Here, a group of juniors discuss last night's party or tomorrow's exams.

And Night, Brownies are Always Gay!

—and of course—the daily exchange of news, ideas, and plans.

From our homerooms, too, we often went to the auditorium to assist at weekly Holy Mass, to view movies or to listen to invited speakers.

At the ring of the 10:30 bell we were ready to begin 3rd period, which in some cases brought us to lunch! This was one of the five lunch periods necessary to accommodate our 1,422 hungry N. D. girls. "Best period in the day" we called it, full of gay laughter, excited talk over coming events, or deep moans and groans over reports.

In Spring and Fall, we spent part of lunch period out of doors. There we often bumped into many of our friends in gym classes en route to the A. A. Field.

People viewing the lively traffic along our drive might think that all we did at N. D. was to enjoy lunch periods, walks, and gym.

But, we knew that our school meant work, too. Our brains were always being tested to capacity in or out of class.

At 3:00, or 3:40 for second shift, we closed the day as we began it, in the locker room—and then, homeward bound!

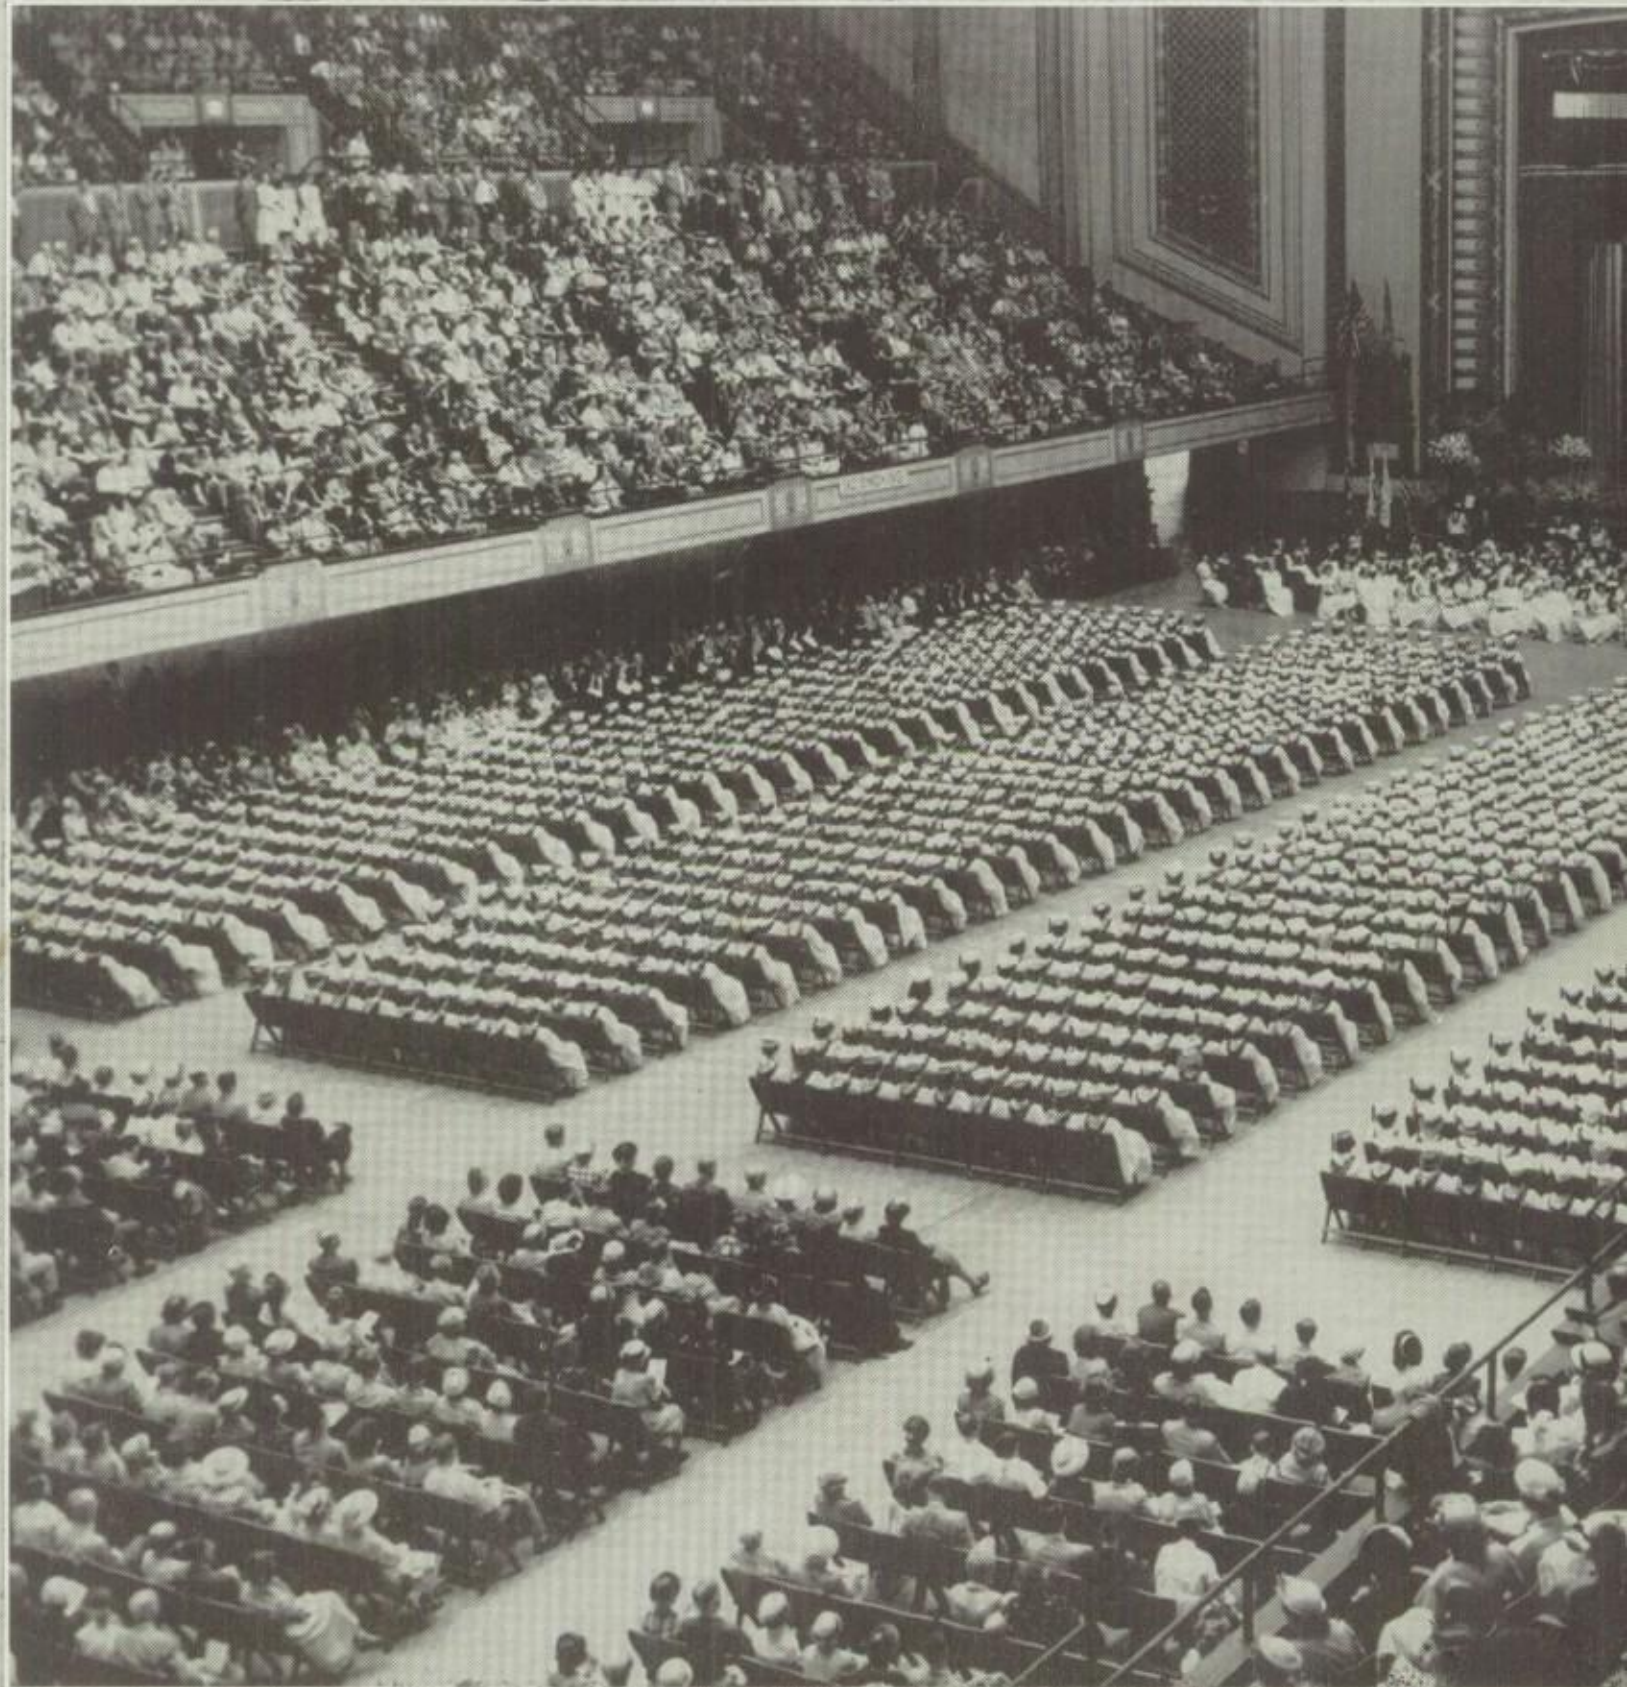

We had come from various places, by various means to do various things, but we all made up one Notre Dame.

Dismissal—rush hour at N.D. Along the drive, our 14 Golden chariots are lined up, ready to roll homeward for the first trip. "Let me see . . ." muses Catherine McLaughlin, "we have National Problems tonight, and Religion . . . and heavens! that poem to write! . . ."

Lunch—best period of the day. N.D. has five of them, from 10:30 (sometimes 9:45) until 2:15. But no matter how early, or how late, girls always seem ready to eat—and to talk. Mrs. Schmeling and Mrs. McCarthy are always smilingly ready to serve us with those impediments to a graceful waistline.

Brownie Stars.

To Brownie Stars

June 7 will find us happy at successfully completing our school duties. Our thoughts will be more than usually serious as we march into Convention Hall, while the combined orchestras of the five diocesan girls' high schools play the processional. During the exercises, presided over by the Bishop and Diocesan Superintendents, special awards will be made to girls who have distinguished themselves in studies or in leadership or in extracurricular activities.

In the tiers of balconies surrounding the Hall will be our parents and friends, listening with interest to the words of the Salutatory and the Valedictory, and to the address of the guest speaker.

Student Organization at Notre Dame is composed of three branches. The Student Council comprises the President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Home Room Representatives. During the school year the council met once a week to discuss problems and activities of the students.

Each year the officers of the Notre Dame Student Organization strive to perform their duties ever more perfectly than the previous year. The officers of the Class of 1953 have tried to carry on the same tradition so that, in the words of the officers' pledge, they might transmit "our school's heritage greater and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

Judges elected from each senior home-room comprise the Student Court, presided over by the Chief Justice. The function of this court is chiefly preventative; the judges strive to make the rules formulated by the Student Council known and understood by all. However, it is also their duty to summon for trial any student guilty of serious infractions of school regulations.

In addition to the Council and Court, the Organization includes four squads: ushers, cafeteria hostesses, transportation marshals, and locker marshals, each headed by a Chairman. During the year, the ushers maintained order, and kept lines moving on the stairs. The hostesses aided in keeping order at lunch periods, while the locker marshals made sure all combinations were in order and that the lockers were kept locked. The transportation marshals had the responsibility of keeping order on our fourteen school buses.

Music Hour—Mary Mylett

In addition to regular school activities, Wednesday morning found N. D. girls busily enjoying themselves in their various clubs. Each club had a definite goal, around which the students formed their plans and projects.

The Braille Club, headed by Dolores Carney, lightened the darkened world of the blind by making Catholic literature available to them in Braille.

Under the presidency of Mademoiselle Ann Wolfe, the members of the French Club increased their proficiency in this language by writing and producing a French play enlivened by French folk songs.

Spreading the work of the Christopher movement was the aim of the Catholic Action Club, under the direction of Catherine Moonan. This included the role of playing Santa Claus to several orphanages, and to aged people at various institutions.

The Art Club, led by Agnes Curran, learned several techniques for beautifying their future homes, especially by floral arrangements.

Collecting stamps, rejuvenating old rosary beads, and gathering Catholic magazines to help the missionaries, was the work of the Mission Club, under the guidance of President Joan Doyle.

Learning about the various vocations in life, and helping its members to decide on one, was the work of the Career Girls' Club. Dolores Whitney was its president.

The sound of "knit one, purl two" came from Room 205, where the girls of the Knitting Club, along with Marie Fishbourne, president, relaxed at their hobby.

Academic students learned the fundamentals of typing in the Typing Club, with Helen Moore as president.

The Music Hour provided students an opportunity to enjoy the music of great composers. Mary Mylett was the president of this club.

The Local History Club, with Winifred Burke as president, promoted Pennsylvania Week. In April, they acted as ushers at the National Convention at West Chester State Teachers' College.

Besides the Senior-Junior Clubs, the school provided an equal number of clubs for the sophomores and freshmen, who found them helpful in furnishing ideas for the development of hobbies and recreational activities, as well as opening new horizons upon the careers which could grow out of their courses of study.

Is Not Harmony the Essence of Heaven?

"Such sweet
Soft notes as yet musicians' cunning
Never gave enraptured air

When Robert Browning penned this verse he had never heard the Notre Dame Orchestra, animated by the inspiring baton of Mr. Guglielmo Sabatini, director of the Trenton Symphony Orchestra. But had the poet been present at our Spring Musicales, at which the Orchestra combined talents with the Glee Club, he might have offered these very words!

From the overture, "Lucille," by Gretry, to the finale, the Orchestra wove a melodious spell. The regal harmonies of "The King and I" made a delightful contrast with the pricking rhythms of "In a Persian Market." The patriotic finale, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," featuring both Orchestra and Glee Club, closed a program that delighted all who attended.

They Sang With the Angels

Lasting joys! A Glee Club songster has so many lovely memories to cherish!

First of all, we had the thrill at the Freshman Day Program in September of donning our new choral gowns, made especially for us. Matching stoles add a note of beauty—pale blue for Our Lady's feast-days; red for the Christmas season.

On December 8, Feast of the Immaculate Conception, surely Our Lady was present with our student body gathered to honor her, as we sang Daley's celestial "Hail, Mary!" In December, too, came the Christmas broadcast over Station WPWA, and, on December 26, the visit to the Home for the Aged. We shall never forget those wonderful, happy smiles of appreciation, as our songs reminded them—and us—once again, of the true meaning of Christmas.

These were important events, but the crowning program of the year came just as Spring was spreading her mantle of soft green over Moylan—the Spring Musicale. The opening number, Beethoven's sacred "Hallelujah" from "The Mount of Olives" was in direct contrast with Arditi's vibrant "Fairy Moonlight." Everyone recalls other favorites—"April Showers," "Tally-ho," "Just a Cottage Small," and "Wagon Wheels," which kept our audience breathless with delight. But no one could possibly forget the great finale, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," in which Orchestra and Glee Club combined to stir to its depths the love of country that lives in the hearts of all earnest Americans.

And now our year is at an end. But no one who has been a member of N. D.'s Glee Club will forget the cherished memories of these four years.

"May I have the honor of this dance?" the Sahib (Doris Glenn) asks Miss Fortune (Emilie McGlynn). Miss Fortune has given the ball for the young Carletons and their friends, prior to Duncan's departure for India.

Miss Fortune (Emilie McGlynn) beams happily on her "grand slam" as the Sahib (Doris Glenn), Marmy, (Ethel Shiller) and George-Anne (Ann Parsons) conspire to allow Miss Fortune to win.

Smiling words of Leslie (Margaret Chadwick) seem to give Richard (Margaret Brockmeyer) something to think about.

"Aye, once and for all!" shouts Duncan (Claire O'Brien) as he vows to George-Anne (Patricia Treen) never to return again—for the seventeenth time.

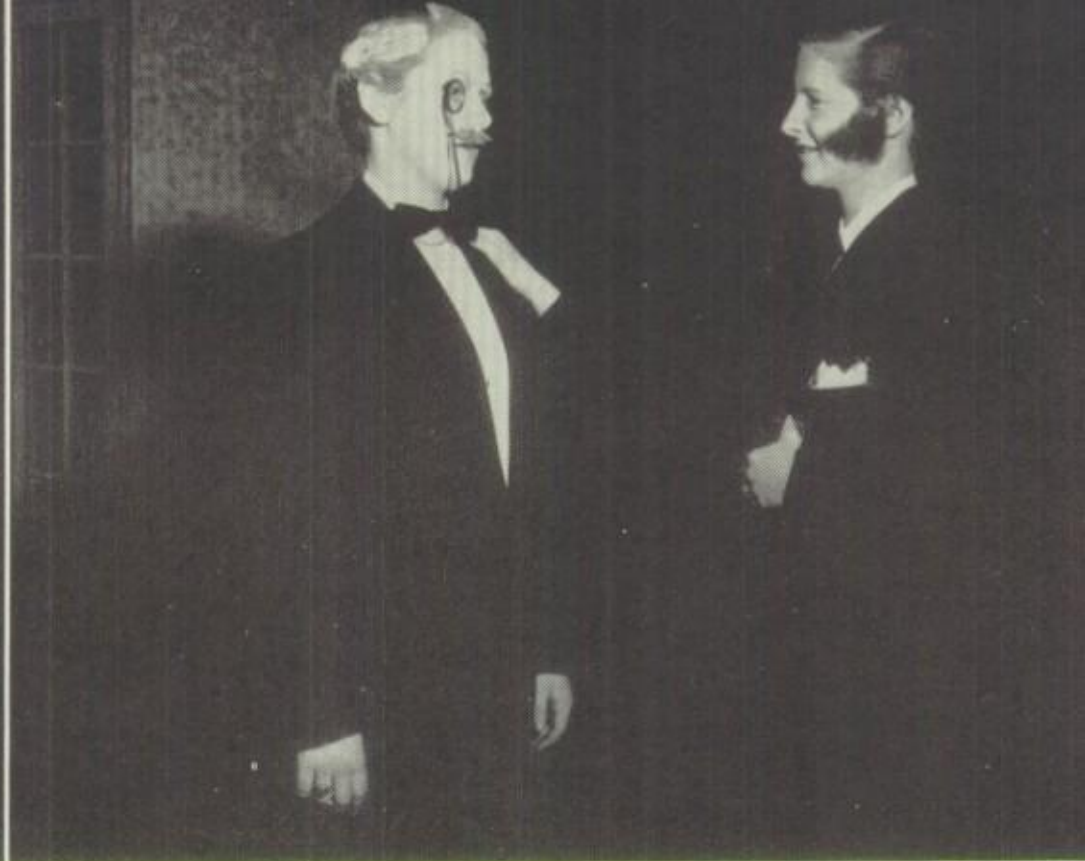

Senior Play

The Young in Heart

Miss Fortune (Emilie McGlynn) smiles with delight as she describes to her faithful lawyer, Mr. Anstruther (Anne Markle) her newly discovered friends.

Sahib (Joan Carr) gasps with amazement as Mr. Hutchins (Ann Grier) announces happily that the Sahib is to be London Sales Manager.

A French train, . . . a wreck, . . . flames, . . . screams, . . . all at Notre Dame! Impossible!

No, not impossible but quite true. And this was only one of the wonders of the senior play, "The Young in Heart." Before the curtain closed on the final scene, the Sahib has changed from a fortune hunter to a self-reliant successful business man; nonchalant Richard has become interested in engineering, while Marmy and George-Ann have realized, through their association with sweet and unsuspecting Miss Fortune, that the most important things in life are faith and love.

All this was quite apparent to the large audiences that sat out front and enjoyed the presentations. But what was not so evident to onlookers was the swift and efficient efforts put forth by our ever faithful and alert staging crew. Who else could have changed the stage set from a train wreck to an orderly English living room within five minutes?

Difficult as was the staging of the play, the members of the cast had their problems, too. Attaining just the right quaver suitable for Miss Fortune's voice and character, to say nothing of the rugged Scotch burr needed for the part of Duncan McCrae, would have tried the patience of any thespian. The gradual transformation in the characters of the Carleton family was difficult to portray; but with the expert direction of Frances Leedom Hess, our dramatic coach, the difficult tasks were accomplished, and the final curtain of each performance rang down on an enthusiastic and appreciative audience.

The splendor and beauty of the ballroom scene would not have been possible without the graceful swaying of Senior dancers, accompanied by the melodious strains of our orchestra.

Last of all, the Seniors owe much of the success of their lovely play to the beautiful sets decorated by the Art Students. It was after long hours of work that their clever fingers achieved the reality of a Paris-Riviera train, the quiet beauty of an English drawing room, and the elegance of the ballroom scene.

At Christmastime

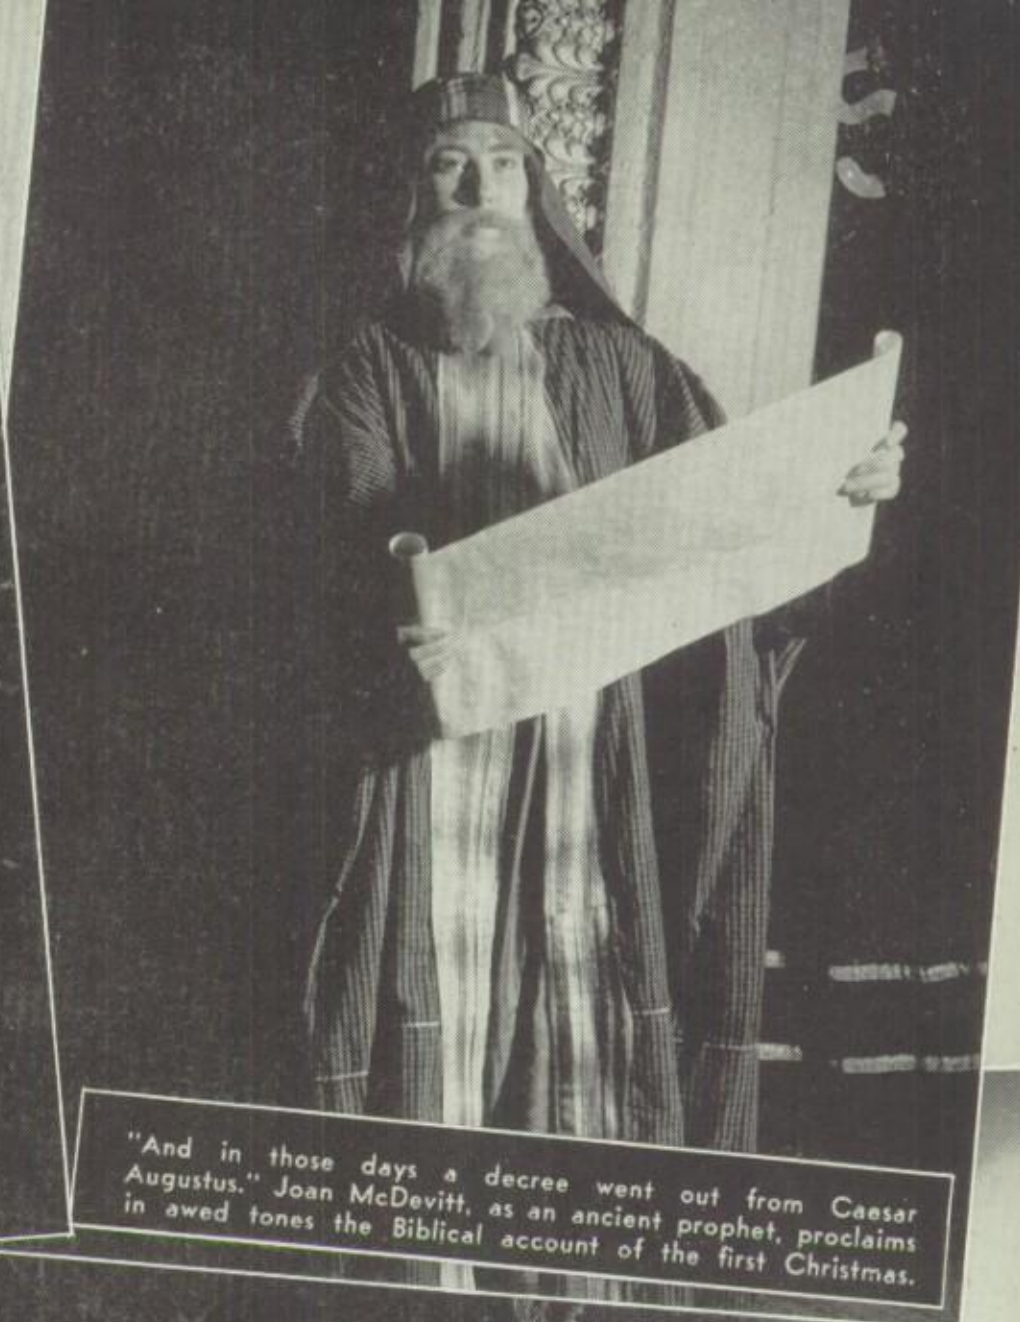

A certain herald of Christmas at Notre Dame was the sight of Art students liberally decorated with red and green paint spots, as they began transforming the halls and corridors into a veritable Christmas Wonderland. Then suddenly evidences of Christmas spirit pervaded the entire school. Girls were seen hurrying to and fro laden with gifts for the old folks or dolls for the orphans. Through closed doors we heard muffled strains of Christmas music.

Finally the moth balls were shaken from the angels' robes, and the campus was searched for shepherds' crooks. Once again we were awed by the ever-new thrill of presenting the age-old Christmas story.

With hearts full of loving gratitude we gathered round the Christmas Crib with the Angels to thank the Christ Child for His infinite gift to us.

"Bearing gifts we traverse afar." Portraying the wise kings are Mary Ann Bradley, Rose Mary Scerni, and Anne Wolf.

"And in those days a decree went out from Caesar Augustus." Joan McDevitt, as an ancient prophet, proclaims in awed tones the Biblical account of the first Christmas.

Is there perhaps a faint note of weariness detectable in Mary Ann Bradley's smile as she introduces the two hundredth couple to Mr. and Mrs. Reilly.

Seniors dance to "Because of You," played by Marty Caruso's Orchestra.

The scene: the Forest Room at the Broadwood Hotel. The time: February 13, 1953. The stars: 290 beautifully-gowned seniors. Celestial background: music by Marty Caruso. The title: Queen of Hearts Ball.

All who entered the Forest Room on that night fell immediately under its charm. The ripple of laughter, the rustle of silk, the harmony of the orchestra—all wove an enchantment to linger in seniors' memories for many years.

Commenting on the lovely debutantes are our gracious chaperons: Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. McKinney and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Reilly.

Barbara Kline conducts a News Writing I discussion of conventional leads.

Collaboration—Turret style! Junior members of "The Turret" Staff, Claire Cranny, Jane Desmond, Betty Crewalk, (standing), Anne Alkosky, Margaret Garr, and Thelma McGrogan, put the finishing touches to their articles.

The Bulletin boasts that "In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads THE BULLETIN" but THE TURRET can top that for—everyone at Notre Dame reads THE TURRET.

THE TURRET has been aptly characterized as a "light beaming brightly in the darkness of Rose Valley—on the night of deadline!"

Most people have heard of this deadline, but few realize its real significance.

Before one month's edition has been distributed, staff members are frantically striving to meet the deadline for the next issue.

The first step in preparing THE TURRET is to appoint editors for each page; the second step is to decide on the articles to be featured. From this point on THE TURRET is the editor's responsibility. Page editors begin by making a layout of their page as it will appear in print, and assign articles to the reporters. Here is where the famous day of dread—deadline day—begins to cast its ominous shadow. Articles must be written, revised (of course), and typed and copy-read by that day—the deadline!

Only a member of THE TURRET Staff can appreciate the real meaning of this word but we can appreciate THE TURRET! All Notre Dame extends a sincere thank you to THE TURRET staff of '53 for giving us a tangible and permanent memory of a wonderful year.

LEFT: Ann Markle and Doris Volkert chuckle over typographical errors before passing them on to be corrected by Editor-in-Chief, Claire O'Brien.

RIGHT: "How will that ever fit?" wonders Mary Ann Bradley, as Elizabeth Bowie and Dolores Carney plan their layout.

The Turret Sees All, Prints the Best!

All past fears of approaching deadline disappear as Beatrice McGarvey, Dolores Orlowsky, Joan Barton, Ann Wolfe and Elizabeth Duffy smilingly view the finished product.

UPPER LEFT: "That's it," smiles Julia Sullivan as Mary Lou Hanlon supplies the missing word. Patricia Treen and Ann Parsons can't seem to decide which picture to choose.

LOWER LEFT: Constance Mahon explains the various techniques of make-up to her classmates.

UPPER RIGHT: One, two, three s-t-r-e-t-c-h! Elizabeth Lee searches for the glue as Therese Byrne and Joan Carr discuss the problems of page make-up.
LOWER RIGHT: No wonder Sylvia Kaliss is smiling. She has just captured Susie Q on paper for the next issue of The Turret.

Before the Maryscript meeting, Margaret Hoffman and Eleanor Beaumont pause to say a brief prayer for guidance in their work.

"How do you think the theme would look on this page?" Ann Marie Grier asks Mary Lou Hanlon after deciding on "A Little Bit of Heaven."

"Now who's this?" wonders Ann Nick, while Ruth McCann searches for the name of the unidentified senior picture in the album file.

Comparing sketches are Sylvia Kaliss and Marie Fishbourne. The other members of the Art Staff, Helen Bartenbach, Mildred Bove and Mary Harkins.

Eileen Fiorentino appraises Nancy Donohue's drawings for Maryscript, while Miriam Kowalski and Barbara Schlichtig work on sketches.

"Not another one!" says Gloria McNutt, as Ann Marie Grier hands her another list to be typed, or is it a page of copy or captions?

You look through your yearbook, and comment upon it, but do you realize how much work goes into making each Maryscript "the best one ever?"

Planning a yearbook was not all glamour and fun, but interesting and hard work.

First of all, the Staff discussed themes around which the story of our year could be developed. Layouts were planned and two complete dummies prepared for the printer. When the pictures of the 374 Seniors returned from the photographer, there was the fun of checking, and sorting them into envelopes for the engraver, as well as hours of typing and copy-reading required for getting identifications perfectly accurate. Writing captions for class groups and action pictures was fun, but captions can be brain teasers!

When galleys returned, we "pasted up the dummy." Then, finally the last page-proofs were checked, and we sat back to wait for today! Every Staff member knows that she wouldn't trade the time spent on the yearbook for anything. This treasure trove of memories of fun and work is your Maryscript of 1953.

Julia Sullivan smiles her approval of the dummy shown to her by Marian Kulokoski and Joan Kling. Copies are made with skill.

"The pictures have come back!" Ann Markle and Helen Redding select photographs and prepare for cropping and mounting for layouts.

Arlene Ronollo works diligently on still another assignment, writing copy that has sparkle and reader appeal. She hopes for inspiration!

"No mistakes in this one," says Mary Lou Hanlon, as she copy-reads an article for the Maryscript with definite care and accuracy.

The faces of the Maryscript Staff radiate their satisfaction, as Anne Markle points out a sample of the cover chosen for Maryscript, 1953, to Gloria McNutt—editor-in-chief.

It Was Hard Work, But We Had Angelic Help

Flag Bearers, Helen Jenkins, Phyllis Sullivan, and Roberta Scott lead the long lines of Notre Dame girls in an inspiring tribute to Our Lady.

A lovely May Day . . . the fragrance of spring blossoms perfuming the air . . . a thousand young voices lifted in prayer and hymns of praise to Our Lady as we gathered round her shrine. . .

The May Procession at Notre Dame is one of our most treasured memories. This procession of Mary's Blue Army was our loving reply to the demonstrations of the Red Army of May Day. How pleased must be our beloved Notre Dame with this humble tribute of her daughters!

Reverend Doctor John J. Graham pauses a moment before the statue of Our Lady crowned with flowers, after his inspiring sermon at the close of the May Procession on the duties of Mary's children to their Heavenly Mother.

Seniors with four years' perfect attendance at Sodality have the privilege of walking in Our Lady's Procession clad in white caps and gowns.

May Queen Sara McElwee lovingly crowns the statue of Our Lady.

Choosing their favorite balls, Kathleen Hilbert, Pat Morgan, Joan Marie Snyder, Jane Kelly, Jean Mullen, Peggy Curry, Fran Howe, and Phyllis Aughe smile confidently before trouncing Upper Darby.

Margie Curry throws with a vehemence—was it a strike?—or a "poodle"!?

Tilt! Pat Morgan almost follows her ball down the alley with more than her eye!

Phyllis Aughe smiles unconcernedly—it's all in a day's work for her.

Teammates watch hopefully as Bunny McKenna gets ready to roll.

Spares and Strikes Fly in Bowling League

Spares and strikes were flying this year! N. D. bowlers were busy! At The Armory and the Penn Rec in Chester, at Collingdale, and at Gehris in 69th Street, our girls rolled and rolled—and finally bowled 200 (?).

Bowling has always been popular at N. D., but this year boasted a record of two hundred and twenty girls participating, in fifty-eight teams in seven leagues. Where else but on the bowling lists at N. D. would you find the Daffy Ducks, or the Kool Kats, or the Bachelor Buttons, or the Zircons? And who could forget our bowling team that ran away with the score, in the game with Upper Darby?

It wasn't all play, though—Teams vied with each another for first place, to win the coveted trophies to be awarded at the Sports Banquet in May.

Before leaving for the various bowling centers, treasurers, Margaret Keeley, Dolores Greto, Jean Turnbull, Joan Doyle, Nancy Bahl, Martha James, Mary Ann Orr, Patricia Crielly, and Pat LeSage, take a last look at the month's tallies.

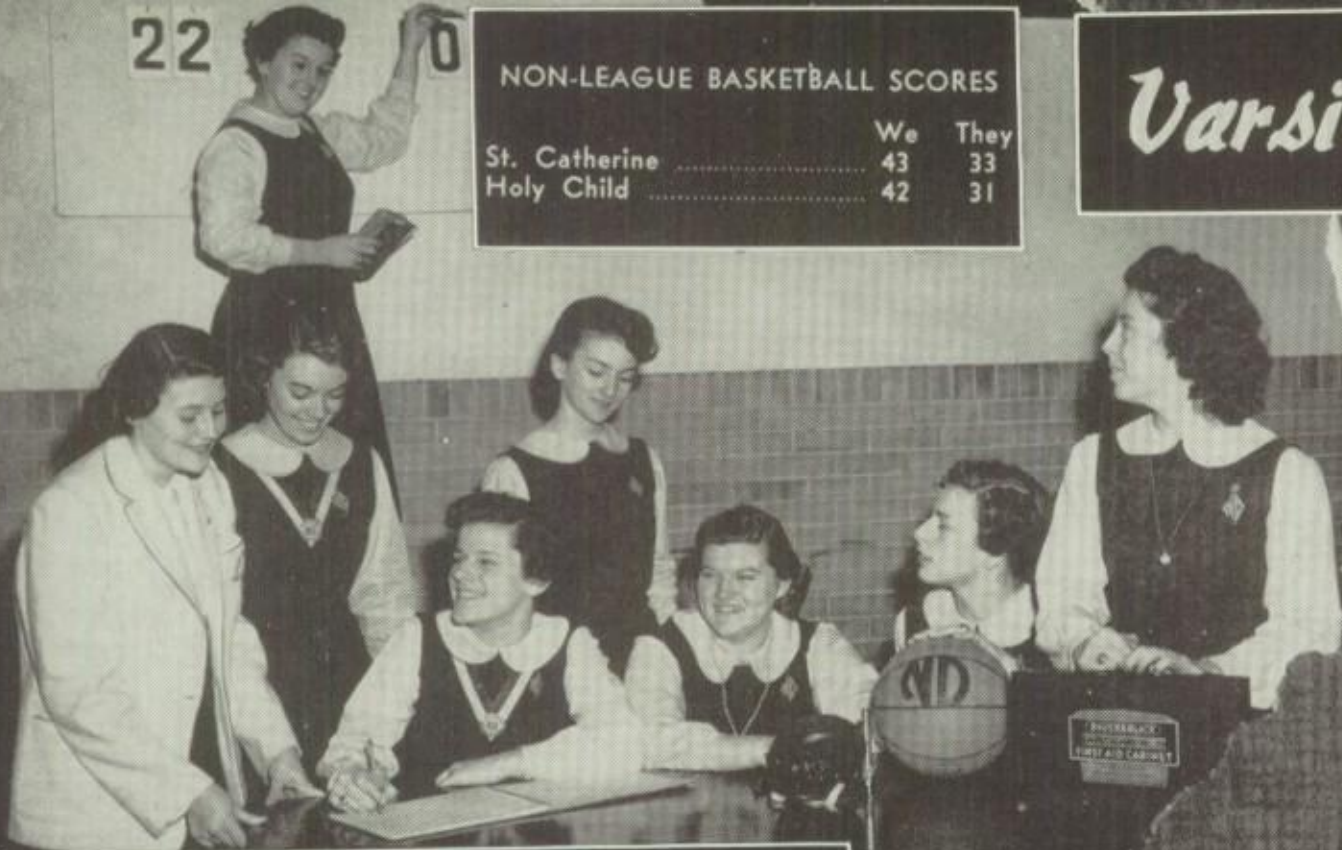

Bowling Presidents Nancy Nick, Patricia Morgan, general chairman, Marian Kulokoski, and Dolores Smith select teams as Marlyn Fenner, Maureen O'Connor, Clotilda Calvarese, and Patricia Dougherty read sports' news.

Varsity Basketball

Mary Ann Homan surveys the scene as Miss Vivian Carson (Coach) consults with basketball officials Emilie McGlynn, Anne Markle, Ruth Shavney, Eleanor Olenichak, Eleanor Sheridan, and Anne Kleinschmidt about the next game.

Rosalie Gebhart, freshman member of N.D.'s varsity, tours center court watching for action.

Up, up, and in! Dutchie Gillon, star soph, racks up another two points for the Blue and Bronze.

Action pauses for a second under N.D.'s basket as Meg Kenny drives in for two points under the ready and watchful eye of Aggie Marshall and also, of course, a few of Little Flower's guards.

It's Peggy's ball as usual!

"It's the day after" but no one seems to be suffering any bad effects as Julia Lally, Constance Leonard, Joan McDevitt, Agnes Curran, Marie Pinter, Peggy McCloy, and Frannie Kelly admire one of the attractive posters provided by the Art Department.

"Ring around the rosie." Joan Carr endeavors to pitch the ball to Dutchie Gillon in the St. Hubert's game.

Their facial expressions showing the strain of a hard-fought game. Helen Moore and Marie Pinter seek to keep the ball from West Catholic.

"Everybody's trying to get into the act!" Peggy McCloy, Sue Brooker, and one of West's Burrmaids reach for that precious sphere.

"Though sad we may seem, we will show you a team . . . That will fight for the right, Alma Mater . . ." Varsity cheerleaders remind opponents of what to expect! Left to right: Bernadette Berry, Patricia Treen, Ann Coleman, Judy Mischler, Jean Postal, Rose Ann Greto, Jane Mullen (mascot), June McGeehan (captain), Kay Shields, Claire Cranny, Pat Crielly, Roseanne Toth, and Rosemarie Irwin.

Another basket! Varsity cheerleaders' Captain June McGeehan cheers the Brownies on to another victory.

Varsity Cheerleaders

"That's the 20th bus so far!" Where's everybody going!"

"Why, Notre Dame is playing today, didn't you know?"

Yes—"the people stop and stare at us whenever we're about!" The spirit of N. D. girls "rocked the land." Nearly the whole school turned out for the games played at the Palestra.

"Win or lose—we're the best without a doubt"—and that was easily proven by the long hours of practice the team put in each night, the patience displayed by our coach, Miss Carson, and the score at the end of a thrill-packed game.

Of course we'll—"give a cheer for the captain and her girls." Junie McGeehan captain of cheerleaders, wrote, created, and put into practice the cheers—to such an extent that a rival school came and congratulated us on the vitality and originality of our cheerleaders.

Led by the energetic cheerleaders, the cheering section demonstrated their love of Notre Dame and her basketball team and verified the fact that—"N. D.'s no small outfit."

On your mark! Get set! Jump!—On Field Day, broadjump specialists vie for ribbons.

"Play Ball!" resounds across the diamond as spectators and players tensely watch an intramural championship game.

This is a favorite sport at Notre Dame.—It's called "relaxing."

"Line up for the bully!" cries Joan Spanier as Arlene Ronollo, Ann Heneks, and Winnie Daniels wait for the opening whistle of the hockey game.

Catcher Ann Parsons smiles patiently while Jean Gernat and Jane Kelly plan the strategy for the next pitch.

Sports Climax with Field Day and Banquet

Volleyball, that old favorite of the fall months was transferred to spring, and this year we got our first sun-tans of the season serving the ball over the net.

Of course, in spring, no sport takes the place of softball! Down on the athletic field we could hear the call of "Batter up!" Spring and softball were here again!

As spring progressed, all the talk was of Field Day, where gold, blue, and red ribbons were won for relays, broad jump, basketball throw, and baseball throw. The highlights of the day were the championship intramural softball game, and the finals of the ping-pong tournament.

The close of our banner year came with the Sports Banquet, attended by all who participated in sports during the year.

"Hooray," shouts Ann Wolfe as Pat Rayner sends the volleyball across the net.

Upperclassmen at last! September, 1952, found us "out of the red" and "happy to be blue." Veterans of two former campaigns, we captured our first Favor Day this year, by nosing out the Seniors in the annual battle of the Patron Slips during the November Drive. There's nothing like the spirit and the pep that puts '54 out in front whenever there's a question of who's tops at N. D. High. We're everywhere, and everywhere we are, you'll see the predominance of loyal blue shining through, on the basketball court with Junior members of the Varsity, or on the sidelines with Endie and the pep squad. Harmony just wouldn't be—in Orchestra or Glee—if our bluebirds of happiness were not there vocally and instrumentally. And do we work?—Just step into any class if you want to see our distinguished honors showing. Or think of all that went into those preparations that made March 20 our day! Our most cherished Junior privilege was that of kneeling each Thursday with the Seniors in the Convent Chapel during the hours of Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament, praying to be true to Our Lady—Notre Dame.
